- Contact: A link to contact the publisher.
- MySpringer for authors: A section for logging in to track publication status. It includes fields for "Email Address*" and "Password*" and a "Log in" button.
- Springer and Open Access: A section with an image of a key and text: "Springer and Open Access. Choose from different publishing options. » read more".
- Find your target journal: The main search section. It includes:
  - A text input field with the placeholder "Enter your abstract or article description". A red arrow points to this field, which contains a sample abstract: "The biggest challenge in the field of gene therapy is how to effectively deliver target genes to special cells. This study aimed to develop a new type of PLGA-based nanoparticles for gene delivery, which are capable of overcoming the disadvantages of PEI or cationic liposome based gene carrier, such as the cytotoxicity induced by excess positive charge, as well as the aggregation on the cell surface. The PLGA-based nanoparticles presented in this study were synthesized by emulsion evaporation method."
  - Two checkboxes: "Only journals with an Impact Factor" (checked) and "Only journals with Open Access options" (unchecked).
  - A blue button labeled "Find your target journal". A red arrow points to this button.
  - A footer note: "THE SPRINGER JOURNAL SELECTOR IS A FREE TOOL FROM EDANZ - EXPERT ENGLISH EDITING."
- Good to know: A section with a partially visible image.

The Windows taskbar at the bottom shows the time as 9:58 AM on 2/14/2016.
